These are highlights of fall 2000 enrollment figures submitted by the State's colleges and universities. These numbers may change very slightly due to students enrolling or dropping out by November 15, the last date in which 2000 enrollment figures are reported to the Maryland Higher Education Commission.

- Total headcount enrollments at Maryland's colleges and universities increased for the fourth straight year, rising by more than 4,700 students to 272,251. *This is the largest enrollment in the State's history, surpassing the level set in 1992.

- Most of the increase was due to a sharp jump in the number of full-time undergraduates to a record high of 121,905. The number of full-time undergraduates increased for the seventh consecutive year, rising 2.8 percent from last year and 13 percent since 1993. In contrast, the number of part-time undergraduates fell for the ninth straight year to 99,111 or by 16 percent. This is the lowest number of part-time undergraduates at Maryland campuses since 1981.

- The number of new full-time freshmen rose slightly (0.8 percent) to a record high of 30,048. There were increases at the public four-year campuses (3.4 percent) and the independent institutions (2 percent). However, the number of new full-time freshmen dropped by 2.1 percent at the community colleges. Since 1990, the number of new full-time freshmen in Maryland has steadily increased by 25 percent.

- Full- and part-time graduate and professional enrollments had a strong year. The number of full-time students jumped 5 percent, while those of part-timers rose by 2.5 percent.

- Total headcount enrollment growth was greatest at the public four-year campuses, where the number of students rose by 3.6 percent. The number of students at the independent institutions increased by almost 2 percent. Community college enrollments were essentially flat.

- There were variations within higher education sectors. Ten of the 16 community colleges gained enrollment, while six lost. The greatest growth came at Wor-Wic Community College (13.2 percent) and College of Southern Maryland (12 percent), both located in areas of the State that have experienced sharp increases in higher education enrollment by local residents in recent years. The largest drop in the two-year sector was at Prince George's Community College (6 percent). Of the public four-year campuses, University of Maryland University College led in growth for the second consecutive year by soaring 16.6 percent. On-line enrollments are fueling this trend at UMUC. Three of the four historically black colleges and universities gained enrollment in the past year. University of Maryland Eastern Shore led with a 9.9 hike—the second greatest among public four-year institutions. Enrollments also rose at Morgan State University (2.6 percent) and Coppin State College (1.2 percent), but fell at Bowie State University (1.5 percent). Salisbury State University, which has been tightening its admissions standards in recent years, nonetheless experienced a 6 percent increase.

- Women continued to outnumber men, comprising an historic high of 59 percent of all students.
